SHALL SCHOOLS BE CARED FOR FIRST?

SCHOOL FUND COMMISSION

SEEKS INFORMATION

Public Asked to Decide For or Against Specific Tax for Public School Purposes.

Members of the school fund commission want to hear from the perple on the best ways and means for raising funds to make ample provision for the public schools.

In drawing its conclusions thus far the commission has adopted the plan of a specific tag for public school purposes, so that whatever happens in other departments of the government the public schools will be taken care of.

Meetings of the commission have been held every week, usually on Tuesday afternoon in the offices of W. A. Bowen on the sixth floor of the Stangenwald building. At the meeting yesterday a general statement was prepared with the purpose of promoting public discussion of a very live topic. Members of the commission desire the views of the people, and the Bulletin will be pleased to publish communications on the general topic of the specific tax or anything that has to do with the schools of the Territory. The statement follows:

A few weeks ago this commission authorized a preliminary statement to the public, in which without taking any final position regarding the matter in hand, the view was expressed that probably some form of a specific tax in support of education would on the whole be the most successful and the most satisfactory to all parties.

Since the issuance of that statement much information has been gathered from many sources, including various states and sections of the American Union. And the commission itself has held several meetings and given careful study to the whole situation. The result has been thus far to confirm the view previously announced. And we hereby again invite our fellow citizens, and especially those who are interested in education, to consider whether a specific tax, imposed by a general law in force from year to year except as amended or changed on special occasions, may not be best adapted to secure economy, stability and the interests of all parties concerned.

arties concerned. Such a tax, so imposed, would not tetter the legislature, for the whole natter would still be under the control of the law-making power. And in years when there was no necessity for any change our legislators would be the freer to give their time and thought to other issues. With regard to the amount of money to be raised for school purposes, if it should be necessary to keep that amount proportionately as small as it is now, a specific tax running stably from year to year would enable the school authorities to know what to depend upon, and thus to use their funds to the best advan-tage. And if, on the other hand. the enlargement which is greatly needed can be realized, the specific ax would furnish a most convenient method of such enlargement. Moreover, while our public school aws and their administration must ever be a department of general government and subject to its general good degree of independence in the school system. The best educational uccess is impossible so long as our schools are subject to the fluctua-tions of politics and biennial appropriation. Just here, it seems to us is one excellence of the specific tax for our schools. It affords our school system and school authorities the reasonable independence which is promotive of the highest success, while at the same time keeping them subject to the legislative, judicial and executive departments of territorial government.

Members of the commission are W. R. Farrington, chairman; W. A. Howen, secretary; Edgar Wood.
